Good afternoon.

I understand that corruption at the Crailsheim führerscheinstelle is now so deeply entrenched that as a personal favor for British criminals, including but not limited to Keir Starmer, and also on behalf of a Jewish organized crime network, you have now twice refused to exchange both my Belgian and American driver's licenses, both of which are in good standing, as you are obligated to do under applicable German law.

Furthermore, I understand that you have requested that I attend a driving school programme. In light of the costs involved, I must naturally assume that a bribe is effectively what is being requested. As such, perhaps you could clarify for me which driving school in Schwäbisch Hall or Crailsheim I should attend. For very clear legal reasons, as I'm sure all parties on this message will appreciate, I am not able to offer you a bribe directly.

Sincerely

James W. Meng
